The current State Chief Electrical Inspector, Wayne Molesworth, retires on June 30. The new Chief Electrical Inspector is Randy Barnes. Randy's career includes 36 years in electrical contracting and ten years with Lnl. He will be based in Kennewick.

To clarify the May Electrical Currents articles:

- Townhome requirements will be eased a bit to provide relief. They will be closer aligned with multifamily housing requirements.
- 210 8A & B GFI requirements won't be mandatory for ranges, cooktops, and outdoor heating units.

City of Bellevue/John Grotte - Not present

City of Seattle/Dave Rankin

City continues to incorporate TAC notes from WA State into the Seattle Code.

The minimum amps for EMS and PCS are being carefully considered.

The city received plans for both a complete renovation of a Seattle Public Schools middle school and projects at University of Washington.

IEEE/Cameron Clark - Not present
